

7 BENEFITS

1. Unclogs Pores

Sweeping away that dead and dry skin, along with all the other surface debris that might remain on your skin after cleansing, stops it from making its way into your pores and causing stubborn stoppages in the form of whiteheads and blackheads.

2. Acne Prevention

Just like how unclogging your pores prevents whiteheads and blackheads, it also prevents other blemishes—namely acne. Exfoliating helps to unclog pores, therefore reducing acne.

3. Helps Other Skincare Product to Penetrate Deeper

When pores are unclogged and the surface of the skin is smoothed and rid of any dead or dry skin, other skincare products are able to penetrate more deeply.

4. Evens Skin Tone

Exfoliants break down dry and dead skin while smoothing texture, which means the skin appears to look more uniform over time. Sloughing away old skin cells and allowing fresh ones to peep through gives your complexion a new lease of life.

5. Boosts Circulation and Lymphatic Drainage

Exfoliation has many benefits, including stimulation of lymphatic drainage for internal cleansing and stimulation of oxygen-rich blood to feed and nourish the skin's surface. The former is a form of skin detoxification, working to remove toxins and other unhealthy debris. The latter boosts cellular health to reveal glowing, radiant skin.

6. Increases Cell Turnover

Exfoliating helps cell turnover so the skin looks more glowing. This means that the skin keeps fresh, healthy cells at the surface, removing dead, dry, or dying ones. In terms of appearance, this results in that ultra-dewy and baby-faced complexion we all strive for.

7. Stimulates Collagen Synthesis & Reduces the Appearance of Wrinkles

Regular exfoliation helps to stimulate collagen synthesis to improve the skin's texture, integrity, and keep the skin looking plump, tight, and young. In this way, exfoliating actually offers anti-aging benefit with the increases of collagen wrinkles can be reduces.
